Mutual Non-Disclosure Agreement

Between GordeyVille Customs and eCommerce Inc. Both sides share private information, so both sides make the same promises.

THE PARTIES

eCommerce Inc. means Palomo Capital Group LLC, doing business as eCommerce Texas, and David Nagy Enterprises, doing business as eCommerce Canada, each signing for itself and together on behalf of eCommerce Inc.

GordeyVille means the business named in the signature block below, doing business as GordeyVille Customs, of the Grande Prairie area, Alberta.

Each is a party. The party sharing information is the discloser and the party receiving it is the recipient. Both parties will be both. This agreement starts on the date GordeyVille signs (the effective date).

1. Why we are signing

GordeyVille and eCommerce Inc. are working together on step one: short interviews with GordeyVille's people, a sheet of recent job dates, a written plan, and a follow-up proposal (the Work). Doing it well means talking openly. This agreement keeps what we share private.

2. What is confidential

Anything one party shares with the other about its business, in any form, that is marked confidential or that a reasonable person would understand to be private. For GordeyVille this includes drawings, quotes, prices, customers, suppliers, job dates, financial records and every interview answer. For eCommerce Inc. this includes its methods, interview designs and questions, templates, tools and pricing. It covers information shared on or after October 9, 2026.

3. What is not confidential

Information that (a) is public, or becomes public without the recipient breaking this agreement; (b) the recipient already had with no duty to keep it private; (c) the recipient lawfully receives from someone free to share it; or (d) the recipient develops on its own without using the discloser's information.

4. What each party promises

The recipient will use confidential information only for the Work. It will protect it with at least the care it uses for its own private information, and never less than reasonable care. It will share it only with its own owners, employees, contractors and advisers who need it for the Work and who are bound to keep it private on terms at least as strict as these. It is responsible if any of them breaks these terms.

5. Interview answers get extra care

Only Joey Palomo and David Nagy read the raw interview answers. eCommerce Inc. keeps them in its own private storage, uses them only to write GordeyVille's plan, and never uses them for another client or another purpose. It deletes the raw answers within 7 days after the last interview closes and confirms the deletion to GordeyVille by email. GordeyVille may keep and use the written plan and the follow-up proposal as its own. eCommerce Inc. keeps ownership of its methods, interview designs and tools.

6. If the law requires disclosure

If a law, court or regulator requires the recipient to disclose confidential information, the recipient will tell the discloser first where the law allows, so the discloser can object, and will disclose only what is required.

7. Returning or deleting

When the Work ends, or sooner if the discloser asks in writing, the recipient will return or delete the discloser's confidential information and confirm it by email. Copies kept in routine backups, or kept because a law requires it, stay protected by this agreement until they are deleted.

8. What this agreement does not do

It does not transfer ownership of, or grant a licence to, anything shared. It does not oblige either party to do business, to hire the other, or to pay anything, and no fee is owed under it. Information is shared as it is, without promises about its accuracy.

9. How long it lasts

This agreement covers information shared for two years from the effective date. Either party may end it sooner by email notice. The duty to protect information already shared lasts three years after the last disclosure, and for a trade secret, for as long as it stays a trade secret.

10. If a party breaks it

A breach could cause harm that money alone cannot fix. The discloser may ask a court for an order to stop or prevent a breach, in addition to any other remedy the law allows.

11. General terms

The laws of Alberta and the federal laws of Canada that apply there govern this agreement, and the courts of Alberta decide any dispute. This is the whole agreement between the parties on this subject. Any change must be in writing and signed by both parties. Neither party may transfer this agreement without the other's written consent. Notices go to the emails in the signature blocks. The parties agree to sign electronically: a typed name adopted as a signature, an electronic signature, and signed copies exchanged by email each count as an original. The agreement may be signed in separate copies that together form one agreement.
